Status Of Internal Audit Capabilities Of Federal Agencies Without Statutory Inspectors General

This report contains the results of GAO's survey questionnaires on internal audit capabilities of federal agencies without statutory inspectors general. The 99 federal organizations which responded vary greatly in funding and in staff size. Twenty-three had 1983 appropriations of greater than $100 million each, while 41 each received less than $10 million.

This study shows that some agencies are not complying with OMB Circulars A-50 and A-73, which address audits of federal operations and programs and audit followup; and with GAO's "Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities, and Functions." Some agencies have no audit coverage, at others the internal auditor does not report to the head or deputy head of the agency, and at several agencies that have more than one audit or investigative unit, there are no procedures for coordination.

The Honorable Jack Brooks
Chairman, Subcommittee on Legislation and National Security Committee on Government Operations
House of Representatives

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Your August 4, 1983, letter requested that we provide the subcommittee with specific information on the audit capability of agencies not subject to the Inspector General Act of 1978 or similar legislation. You expressed interest in audit staff size, independence, coordination of audit functions, and followup and implementation of audit recommendations. In addition, you asked whether the audit organizations in these agencies are meeting GAO's audit standards.

We solicited information from 105 organizations, through the use of a questionnaire, to answer the questions in your letter. The summary we are providing you is based on responses to the questionnaire from 99 agencies. This information has not been verified by us.

As you requested, we kept the subcommittee staff apprised of significant findings and trends during the course of our survey. On January 31, 1984, we provided detailed results and statistical analyses of the survey to the staff and agreed to send the subcommittee a report responding to your specific questions. Appendixes in this report contain summary charts and exhibits listing information pertaining to individual agencies; and at the subcommittee staff's suggestion, we are also providing information on these agencies' use of a fraud hotline.

The responses from 99 organizations in the federal government showed that these organizations vary greatly in funding and staff size. The U.S. Postal Service and Departments of the Treasury and Justice are among the largest federal agencies and have relatively large internal audit staffs. Conversely, the Advisory Committee on Federal Pay has approximately $200,000 in appropriated funds, only three personnel, and no audit staff. Of the 99 agencies in our survey, 23 have 1983 appropriations of greater than $100 million each, while 41 of these agencies received less than $10 million each. Internal audit staff size ranges from one person each at seven organizations to over 550 personnel at the U.S. Postal Service.

Our survey also showed that some agencies are not complying with OMB Circulars A-50 and A-73, which address audits of federal operations and programs and audit followup; and with GAO's "Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities, and Functions." For example, some agencies have no audit coverage; at others the internal auditor does not report to the head of the agency or deputy; and at several agencies that have more than one audit or investigative unit, there are no procedures for coordination. Although we did not determine the specific reasons for non-compliance, many of the agencies in the above categories are relatively small, which may affect their ability to comply fully with all audit standards. In any event, we intend to follow up on selected agencies in order to improve internal audit capabilities in these agencies.

Our responses to the specific questions raised in your letter are as follows:

Which agencies have audit and investigative capability in-house and which use external audit?

As shown in the following chart, 20 of the 99 agencies responding to our questionnaire had no audit coverage.

The remaining 79 agencies responding said that they were audited either by external or internal auditors, or both. Forty-four of them have internal audit units, including twenty-two that also have external audit coverage. Thirty-five agencies without internal audit units are covered only by external auditors (see appendixes I through IV on pages 1 to 5 for more details).

Nineteen of the 99 agencies responded that they have investigative units (see appendix V, p. 6). Some agencies, however, indicated that while they do not have a formal investigative unit, investigations are conducted by other organizational components or even by auditors within the internal audit organization on an ad hoc basis.

What is the size of the internal audit function in comparison to the budget and personnel resources of the agency?

The next chart shows a comparison of agencies with and without internal audit units by budget size. Forty-eight of the 55 agencies without internal audit units have funding levels below $30 million. A further breakdown shows that 15 of the agencies have funding levels of less than $1 million; another 20 agencies have funding levels between $1 and $10 million. The two agencies with budgets over $100 million and no internal audit unit are the Legal Services Corporation and the U.S. Courts. The Legal Services Corporation, however, has an audit organization which is responsible for ensuring that grant recipients comply with the Legal Services Act. Audit coverage is provided for the courts by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

NUMBER OF AGENCIES WITH AND WITHOUT INTERNAL AUDIT BY BUDGET SIZE
(88 AGENCIES)

55 WITHOUT UNIT

44 WITH UNIT

Agencies with smaller staffs are less likely to have internal audit units. For example, 49 of 55 agencies without internal audit units have less than 350 personnel. Conversely, agencies with more than 350 personnel are more likely to have internal audit units. Thirty-two of 44 agencies with internal audit units exceed 350 personnel. See the following chart for some comparisons.

The agencies without internal audit units which have staffs over 1,575 are the U.S. Courts and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Individual comparisons between funding and personnel are provided in appendix VI, pp. 7-12.

Are audit and investigative functions independent of management?

Thirty-nine of the 44 agencies with internal audit units (89 percent) responded that their internal audit unit reported to either the head or deputy head of the agency as called for in OMB Circular A-73. Reporting to the highest possible level in the agency is one standard for independence according to GAO's "Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities, and Functions." The internal audit units in the other five agencies report to a finance officer or other official in the agency, indicating a lack of independence. Appendix VII on pages 13 through 15 provides a breakdown of the internal audit unit reporting level by agency.

Are audit functions conducted by more than one office within an agency coordinated?

Twenty-one of those agencies with internal audit units responded that there was more than one audit or investigative unit within their agency. However, only four of these agencies indicated that they had procedures for coordinating audit work within their agency. (See appendix VIII, p 16.)

Does followup of audit findings occur to assure resolution and, as appropriate, are recommendations implemented?

We did not perform audit work at the agencies, therefore, we are unable to determine if follow-up of audit findings and implementation of recommendations is occurring. However, 25 of the 44 agencies with internal audit units responded that they have procedures--in accordance with OMB Circular A-50--for the resolution of audit findings. (See appendix IX, p. 17.) Thirty-one of the 44 agencies indicated that they have procedures for following up on the implementation of audit recommendations. (See appendix X, pp. 18 and 19.)

Are audit organizations meeting GAO's audit standards?

Fifty-one of the agencies indicated that they meet GAO's audit standards, and three indicated that they do not meet the standards. Forty-five agencies responded that the standards were not applicable. Appendix XI, p. 20-25, provides each agency's response about its compliance with GAO audit standards.

Number of agencies with and without a hotline

Nine agencies reported that they have a hotline for receiving calls about fraud, waste, and abuse; eighty-four agencies do not have a hotline. Six agencies did not respond to the question. Those agencies reporting that they have a hotline are listed on appendix XII, p. 26.

We hope this information will be useful to you in your consideration of legislation for those federal agencies which are not subject to the Inspector General Act of 1978 or similar legislation. If we can be of further assistance please contact us.

As arranged with your office, unless you publicly announce its contents earlier, we will not distribute this report until 30 days from its date. At that time we will send copies to interested parties and make copies available to others upon request.

Sincerely yours,
